PAUL WAKEFIELD

COUNCIL MEMBER
SINCE 2019

I am a fun loving father to two amazing children and partner to an amazing woman. Moved from London to Singapore for a year assignment and here we are 7 years and counting. The last 14 years of my career have been spent working on manpower solutions for large global energy and infrastructure assignments. I am passionate about creating change and love being involved in projects which focus on education, equality and empowerment in emerging countries.

If you had to write a book, what will the title be? Why?

"The Panda who lost his pants". To get my daughter to sleep in the evenings, rather than read a book I often lay next to her and make up stories and characters who we create together. The other evening I asked her what the name of our new adventure was and that was her answer. I've promised her it'll be our first book together.

How did you get to know PS and how did you become involved?

Victoria and I were introduced by a mutual friend and hit it off straight away. Her passion to change the lives of the children through better access to education was inspirational. I have tried to take what I have learnt from running start-ups and building out projects to help Victoria and the team lay out a clear plan for success. It's a long road ahead but with the growing support and success she has already received I can see many great things on the horizon.

Why PeopleStories?

I love the simplicity of the initiatives and how involved everyone can be. Time is spent on ideas and creating change and every dollar raised is spent on the project and nothing is lost through unneeded costs or expenses. We have created an organisation that is built on transparency and trust and this is the foundation for everything we do.

You are very generous with your support to PeopleStories. What do you get out of it for yourself?

I am confident of the path we are walking at PS and the many people it will help along the way whether that be the children, their families or the volunteers. Finding true purpose in what we do is one of the most fulfilling things in life. Its also nice to help build something that I can show my children and they can be part of in the future.

If you are granted 3 wishes to make the world a better place, what would those wishes be?

- 1)End poverty
- 2)Equality for all
- 3)Eliminate waste
